What a dump! It's cold, and I think somebody put liquid soap in my saxophone! How could this get any worse?!

SHUT UP! SHUT UP! SHUT UP!

I've had it! This is the worst camp ever—worse than Kamp Krusty! As soon as assembly is over, I'm calling Dad to come get me! Nothing could salvage this miserable...

NOW, KIDS, I WANT YOU TO MEET YOUR SAXOPHONE INSTRUCTOR...

Bart Simpson #11

Jessy Bartz age 14
Moline, IL

FACE TO FACE

Just wanted to say I loved your anime story from Bart Simpson #12. I even came up with a good name for Bart's character: Bash Caughtem! I like both Bart and Ash, they're kinda cuties (for cartoon characters). I was happy to see them come together! Bart is such a cool kid...wish Lisa would lighten up on him a bit! I had a question about Bart from the same issue. In "Taming Your Wild Child" how did he get the doggie nose and ears off? My guess is that Dr. Nick just sewed on the fake stuff over his normal nose and ears for easy removal (which is why he was back to normal by the time Homer got to

Sergio Salinas, Jr.
Downey, CA

Chapter 3 of his book). Or did his fake nose and ears fall off because of Terror Sweat????

KELLY PARCKETT

Kingston, NY

Well, Kelly, if you look very closely between the first and second panels on page 4, you'll notice a cleverly disguised time-lapse, in which Bart undergoes an extreme makeover to restore his original face. We just thought it was a bit too graphic for our readers, so we kept it short and sweet!

TWO GOOD QUESTIONS

I love "The Simpsons" and your comics. Why do you only publish Radioactive Man comics twice a year? When you get to Simpsons Comics #100, will it be a special issue?

JORDAN FLESHMAN

Lewisburg, WV

Jordan, we're glad you asked. Radioactive Man only comes out twice a year for the same reason that Christmas comes only once a year—because too much of a good thing would just spoil you! No, seriously, Radioactive Man is a bi-annual title so that we can have room for all of our other great books, like Simpsons Comics, Bart Simpson, and Futurama Comics. You wouldn't want to begrudge us any of our other fave books, would you? Huh? We thought not. And, while we like to think of every issue of our comics as being special, we'll be sure to celebrate our 100th issue of Simpsons Comics in proper centennial style. Stay tuned!

BULLY FOR YOU!

I'm a big fan of all your shows and comics. Now I guess you've heard that before, but I'm saying it anyway. One piece you wrote inspired me. Now, I'm premature (born early) and I've been bullied because of how

Zak Quilling
Suisun, CA

short I am, but in a comic book you wrote about bullying, and I knew I could make a difference. So I fought against it and now I'm out on top. So, just to let you know, I admire you. Keep it up!

MOLLY

Peterborough, UK

Wow, Molly. You've inspired us with your bravery! It's easy to be a bully, but it's very hard to stand up for yourself. You've proven that heroes come in all sizes. We're proud of you. Now, to all the bullies out there who push people around for whatever reason—back off, man!

NEXT ISSUE!

BART SIMPSON #16

Bart, Milhouse, and Ralph venture into unknown territory, a crosstown Kwik-E-Mart, to seek out "The Squishee of Death"; Lisa uncovers a insidious crime against her Malibu Stacy collection and all signs point to one culprit...Bart Simpson; Milhouse gets a new look for School Picture Day; and Bart breaks a few rules in order to taint Ned Flanders' spotless reputation.
